

Conclusion

While there is a significant base of land in Richmond with potential for redevelopment to business park uses, current land ownership patterns in these areas pose an important constraint.

City involvement could be required to resolve issues (e.g. servicing) involved in the assembly of suitable development parcels.