Richmond Art Gallery (RAG) is proud to present the first solo exhibition by Richmond artist Pierre Vassura. Over forty years in the making, the exhibition will showcase a range of sculptures, paintings and drawings, highlighting a strong graphic style and vibrant use of colour.

Many of Vassura's paintings are in series, like classic grand narratives, and the sculptures shown will include puppets and purpose-built stages. These artworks are a joyous celebration of storytelling and visual culture that cross national, cultural and language boundaries, drawing from diverse sources. Vassura evokes classic literature including the Decameron, Dante's Divine Comedy and Aesop's Fables, as well as referencing the Tarot and stories from The Bible.

The exhibition's co-curators are also artists, and both Jonathan Middleton and Eli Bornowsky are excited by Vassura's visual style, especially his "polychromatic, mandala-like, dizzying use of colour."

Middleton elaborates: "The title New Work is usually applied to an exhibition of a recent body of work within the span of an artist's career. Vassura's work is, however, new in that this is its first public exhibition in that time. The title also points to the inventiveness of Vassura's practice—combining important influences and ideas in a way that feel rather singular, and indeed, new."

"It is rare to encounter an artist working at this level that has not exhibited before" said RAG director Shaun Dacey, adding that there is a vast cache of finished work to draw from. "Since arriving in Canada in 1983, Vassura shared his work just once, at the Italian Cultural Center." However, Dacey notes that the artist has "continued to work tirelessly, entirely filling his Richmond home with paintings, sculptures and drawings". RAG is honoured to host this important exhibition and believes Vassura's work will have broad appeal.

BIOGRAPHY

Pierre Vassura was born Romagna, Italy in 1935. The son of an architect and teacher, he enrolled in agricultural studies following the death of his father at age thirteen. Farming was not his passion however, and at age twenty Vassura moved to France in search of artistic experiences. He first secured work as a ceramic designer at the Faïencerie de St. Clement, and later a ceramic studio in Cote d'Azur, Vallauris-Juan les Pins. Vassura became a technical and production expert in several ceramic factories in Switzerland, France, Italy and Israel and he participated in Israel's vibrant emerging ceramics industry with Palceramic in Haifa. With the Beit-Hagefen Art Gallery, Vassura first exhibited his paintings in Tel-Aviv and Haifa from 1963 to 1965. In this fruitful period, Vassura also met his future wife, Fotiny with whom he would have two children. In the early 1980's Vassura and his family moved to Richmond, BC. In 2002, Vassura exhibited a mature body of work at Vancouver's Italian Cultural Centre, Pierre Vassura: New Work 1983 - 2018 is his first major solo exhibition.
