Imagine...

... a school where children listen to the wind, throw pebbles in the water, and grow vegetables and flowers. Imagine a place where children run along the pathways, watch birds land and take flight, find feathers, climb atop tree stumps, lie in grassy fields, and gaze at the clouds. Terra Nova Nature School is this place!

The program operates out of the restored Edwardian Cottage in Terra Nova Rural Park, a 63 acre city-wide park in the Thompson area that features historic buildings, a community garden and a picnic area.

What is Nature School?

Throughout the seasons and no matter the weather, students of Terra Nova Nature School spend a significant amount of time outdoors. Children explore the natural landscape and its inhabitants for a learning experience that will always be dynamic, emergent and innovative!

Facilitated by Early Childhood Educators, our play-based programs support learning in all areas of child development. Terra Nova Nature School is inspired by the Forest Kindergartens of Europe and the schools of Reggio Emilia, Italy.
